

JACQUE WILLIS ALLEN, EM2, 1930-2009

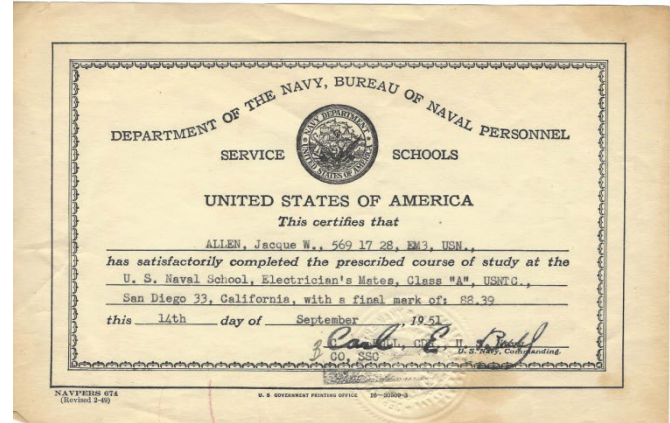

KOREAN WAR VETERAN

Enlisted into the US Navy, September of 1948 where he attended EM School in San Diego before a very brief assignment as Electrician Apprentice, to the USS Camano. This ship was configured as a Navy transport and cargo ship and operated with the U.S. Pacific Fleet until December 1951 when she was turned over to the U.S. Department of the Interior. He was then re-assigned to the ship Sausalito.

After the outbreak of the Korean War in June of 1950, the Sausalito was placed in reserve at Yokosuka. The U.S. Navy needed additional escort vessels, and on 15 September 1950 Sausalito was re-commissioned at Yokosuka with Lieutenant Commander Francis W. Deily in command. On 26 November 1950, she departed Yokosuka for Hŭngnam, North Korea.

Between February and May 1951, Sausalito's assignments included escorting the battleship USS Missouri (BB-63) on her shore bombardment station, blockade patrols, shore bombardment on the east coast of North Korea from Wonsan to Chongjin, and harbor control duty at Wonsan, broken by periods of upkeep at Sasebo and Yokosuka, Japan. Between June and August 1951, she escorted underway replenishment groups off the Korean coast.

After dry-docking and upkeep at Yokosuka, Sausalito departed for the Philippine Islands in October 1951. In late November and early December 1951, she conducted a patrol against unauthorized fishing vessels in the Sonsorol Islands in the western Caroline Islands, apprehending one vessel. After spending Christmas 1951 in Subic Bay on Luzon, she made a good-will tour to Saigon, South Vietnam; Bangkok, Thailand; Singapore; and Penang, Federation of Malaya. With so much sea travel the sailors found ways to keep up their moral by writing poems and playing pranks. Jacque Allen was no exception. He managed to save a couple of examples shown below:

"HOT ROD RACE (PACIFIC STYLE)

NOW ME AND MY BUDDY "ONE HUNG LOW"
 TOOK OFF ON A "CAN" FROM SASEBO,
 THE CHOW WAS POOR AND THE FUEL WAS LOW
 BUT THAT "CAN" WOULD REALLY GO.
 WHILE CRUISING ALONG LIKE A GOOD SHIP MIGHT,
 A CRUISER BEHIND US BLINKED HER LIGHTS.

WE HAD TWIN SCREWS ON THIS OLD "TIN CAN"
 WHICH MIGHT MAKE YOU THINK KKKK WE WERE IN A JAM,
 BUT TO YOU WHO DON'T DIG THE JIVE,
 THAT'S FOUR HOT BOILERS WITH A TURBINE DRIVE.
 NOW WE'RE "CAN MEN, AND WE LIKELY KNEW
 THAT WE'D PROBABLY RACE TILL SOMETHING BLEW.

THE PANTAIL WAS DREIF FROM THE CHURN OF THE SCREWS
 BUT THROUGH THE WAVES WE FLEW AND FLEW
 OUR "EXMC" WAS PALE AND SAID HE WAS SICK.
 BUT TO US CAN MEN HE WAS JUST A "HICK".
 WHY SHOULD WE WORRY, FOR WHAT THE HUCK.
 US AND THAT CRUISER STAYED NECK AND NECK.

NOW OVER THAT OCEAN WE DID GLIDE,
 FLYING WITH OUR THROTTLE WIDE,
 OUR SKIPPER SCREAMED AND THE CREW THEY CRIED,
 BUT US AND THAT CRUISER STAYED SIDE BY SIDE.
 WE GAZED O'er THE PANTAIL AND WE SAW SOMETHING COMING, THROUGHTXX IT WAS A "JET" AS WE HEARD IT A HUMMING.

IT WAS COMING ALONG AT AN AWFUL PACE,
 AND WE KNEW RIGHT THEN, T'WAS THE END OF THE RACE.
 AS IT STEAMED ON BY, WE LOOKER THE OTHER WAY,
 FOR THE SKIPPER OF THE CRUISER HAD NOTHING TO SAY,
 FOR THERE GOING BY WAS A RESERVE(JG),
 PUSHING A "SOUP" UP "FF"4".

February 1952 found Sausalito back in Korean waters, where she resumed escort and patrol duties before returning to Yokosuka for the last time under the United States flag on 31 May 1952.

The U.S. Navy decommissioned Sausalito on 9 June 1952.

The U.S. Navy awarded Sausalito six battle stars for her Korean War service.

Electrician's Mate Second Class Jacque W. Allen was then re-assigned to the USS Prevail.

Prevail re-commissioned 1 April 1952, was reclassified as USS Prevail (AGS-20), and underwent conversion to a survey ship at New York Naval Shipyard. Reporting in late August to Commander, Hydrographic Survey Group 1, in October, she undertook her first surveying assignment in the Cape Hatteras area. From 1953 to 1956 she conducted survey and cable laying operations in the Caribbean, along the Southern and Eastern coasts of the United States north to Nova Scotia, and in the South Atlantic Ocean.
